“Co-parenting: Children in Changing Families”
This class is court mandated.

“Co-Parenting: Children in Changing Families” Many divorcing parents experience a dilemma -- at the time their children are in most need of them, they are least emotionally available. This class helps parents focus on the needs of their children during and after a divorce. Parents will receive help in separating spousal issues from parenting issues. Topics include grieving the loss and moving on, how children react to conflict, active listening, and other strategies to help kids and parents cope with divorce and separation.

To Register: Call 541-666-0931, or mail the registration form to the address listed above for Old Mill Center, or email completed registration form to contact@oldmillcenter.org.

The fee for this class is $50 per person. Payment can be made using the following methods:

- Pay online with a debit/credit card at oldmillcenter.org under the “Pay Bill” section.
- Mail a check for $50 made payable to Old Mill Center at least a week prior to the class.

Location: All classes are currently being offered remotely on a secure video platform, called Zoom. Classes can be attended from the comfort of your own home, an electronic device capable of video and sound is required to attend. Participants are expected to fully participate in the entire course and should plan with their work and childcare, as needed. We also ask that participants are not driving and have their camera on the entire course to show engagement. If participants are unable to fully participate, they may be asked to retake the course, at the discretion of the group facilitator.

Time: 4:30-7:00pm OR 6:00-8:30pm (participants will be notified of course time when they register).
